IF THE LITTLE JOCKEY WOULD ACCEPT MORE

since the Brighton Beach meeting was begun. So much rain has fallen since the flags were raised over the grandstand this season that any reasonable person might have supposed that the reservoirs of the sky were at low ebb. But plenty of water was still in store up above, and a most violent thunderstorm sent down torrents after the fourth race yesterday. A high wind drove the floods before it with extreme force. In a few minutes the track was a herses are likely to be wading through mud this afternoon. The track was just becoming thoroughly empact and sound throughout and in fine condition. Turfmen generally express much regret for the severe ill-luck of the Brighton Beach Racing Association, which had been notably generous in proportion to its means and resources in giving prize this meeting. Several of the contests of this afternoon, when this meeting will end, give promise of stirring battles, and the association deserves a big condance for its liberality and enterprise

The success of J. S. Ferguson's filly Trillette in the was hailed with pleasure by the many friends of Trillette's popular owner. It is probable however that if Double Quick, the favorite, had been ridden by a strong, quick-driving jockey, and had got off well at the start, Trillette would have been second and not first. Horace Theobald's colt Purse Proud, at wildly extravagant outside figures the betting, got third place. The odds-on favorite Isabey had an easy task in the second race, as he was much superior to the

Some owners say that it is distressingly difficult to get Sloane to accept any mounts outside of the stable of his employer, George E. Smith. Cerirreverent owners even go so far as to asserthat Tod's head is swollen to the size (in his mind) of the dome of the Capitol at Washington, and that he will not consent to ride except on conditions most exacting and unreasonable. It is a great pity if the little man's hats fall to fit him in these days. When he is in his best form he can ride refreshingly well, and facegoers enjoy intensely seeing him ride and flock eagerly to back his mounts. It is no exaggeration and no joke to say that if the Brighton Association could announce with truth that Sloane would surely ride in four or five of the six races today, many people would go to the track solely for the pleasure of admiring Sloane's jockeyship find backing his mounts. He is wonderfully quick at the barrier, aimost always gets an excellent start, and usually rides with skill and judgment. He rode the favorite, Lincoln II, in the third race, with perfect coolness and conspicuous sagacity. It is true that Lincoln II surpassed the others considerably at the weights and the distance, but Sloane's work in the saddle in that race was a model for other jockeys to imitate. he will not consent to ride except on conditions

If Sloane had been on Double Quick (who was it Sloane had been on Double Quick would surely nave won the first race. Clawson, however, rode Wolhurst neatly and deftly in the fourth race, and Wolhurst won, while Ben Eder, the odds-on favorite, ran second.

woldurst neatly and deftly in the fourth race, and Wolhurst won, while Ben Eder, the odds-on favorite ran second.

Corbley was never a master jockey, and he was in his worst form yesterday. He threw away the fifth race on the favorite Boy Orator by his awkwardness and elumsiness at the post, and by his wardness and elumsiness at the post, and by his wardness and elumsiness at the post, and by his wardness and elumsiness at the post, and by his wardness in the favorite him so poorly that he came in third. Corbley was almost left at the post on Manassas in the sixth almost left at the post on Manassas in the sixth race, and he handled him uncouthly all the way. If Sloane or any other high-class jockey had been on Manassas, that high-class jockey had been on Manassas, that high-class jockey had been a good second to the favorite. Haphazard. But Manassas, no matter how well he might have been ridden, if another jockey had been in the saddle, could not have defeated Haphazard, as Haphazard likes a sloppy track better than a dry one, and his victory was extremely easy.

The rule of three has caused any amount of pain and anguish to Starter Pettingili. When the bell rings the third time it must be a start, according to the rule recently adopted by the Jockey Club. When the bell rang the third time in the sixth race every jockey pulled up. Starter Pettingili did not drop the flag, and was greatly relieved. Had one of the jockeys broken away and completed the circuit of the track, his mount would have won the purse under the provisions of the rule, even if all the other contestants remained at the post.

The century run which will be held under the au spices of the Manhattan Bleyele Club to-morrow will decide the ownership of the trophy which is now on exhibition at the Metropolitan Bicycling Academy, Sixtleth-st, and the Boulevard, trophy was offered for competition in the double century run of the Manhattans held on July 10 and 11, and the single-century run which was to have taken place on July 11, but which was postponed on account of rain. Each survivor of the double century won two points for his club, and the result is as follows: Century Wheelmen, 10 points; Triumph Wheelmen, 6; Rutherford Cyclers, 6; Harlem Wheelmen, 2; Jax Cyclers, 2; Logan Wheelmen, 2; Nax Cyclers, 2; Logan Wheelmen, 2; In the single-century run each survivor was to score one point for his club, the total points won in the two contests deciding the winning club, and the clubs which have already the winning club, and the clubs which have already some points are working to have enough entries to some points are working to have enough entries to win over the others and over any "dark horses" which may try to score heavily enough in the single-century run to overcome the result of the double. Sunday's run is open to all wheelmen, whether members of clubs or not. The badges are mil ready and are being issued on receipt of the entries. Silver medais or watch charms of a hand-tries. Silver medais or watch charms of a hand-tries design are provided for all survivors of the run who desire to secure them, on payment of a nominal fee. sult is as follows: Century Wheelmen, 10 points;

"I can't understand why a man in a uniform imagines he owns the road," remarked Magistrate Kudlich in the Harlem Police Court yesterday to a bicyclist arraigned before him for scorching. club members write letters to the Magistrates askclub members write letters to the Magistrates asking that all scorchers be fined the extreme penalty, but when you get out on the road and dash along at a furious speed and are arrested you denounce your arrest as an outrage and accuse the police of failing to attend to their duty properly." The Magistrate fined the scorcher $5.

The almost continuous rainy weather of the last two weeks has been tantalizing to the enthusiastic cyclist. The road conditions issued by the New-York State Division yesterday show that the country roads are rather muddy, but with fine weather to-day and to-morrow all the macadam roads will be in good condition for Sunday riding.

The committee in charge of the Riverside Wheelmen's National Circuit race meet, to be held at Manhattan Beach Saturday, July 31, at 2:30 p. m., Manhattan Beach Saturday, July 31, at 2:30 p. m., announces that it is receiving entries from all the fast riders in this section. What promises to be one of the features of this meet is the one-mile tandem handicap for amateurs, in which the best amateur teams will compete. Entries will close with J. M. THE SELMA LARSON CASE.

DETICENCE OF THE DINSMORES AND THEIR FAMILY PHYSICIAN.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 23.-Coroner Bevier, of Matteawan, received a letter this evening from William Charvill, recently butler at the Dinsmore house at Staatsburg, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the mysterious death of Selma Larson. It is a straightforward statement in which Charvill tells the Coroner that he intends to leave New-York to seek employment, but agrees to inform the Coroner every day of his address, so that he may be found if wanted. He assures the Coroner that he is anxious to have the mystery cleared up, and regrets that he made "such a fool" of himself in lying about the bottles of wine he took from the Dinsmore cellar and gave to Miss took from the Dinsmore cellar and gave to Miss Larson.

Nothing has occurred to-day to make the Coroner or the District-Attorney alter their opinion that the girl's death was due to natural causes. These officials cannot understand why Mr. and Mrs. Dinsmore and their family physician, Dr. Barnes, while pretending to be extremely anxious to have the girl's death thoroughly investigated, are so reticent in giving information about the case. To-day Dr. Barnes sent to the District-Attorney a small package of powder, which appeared to be either a cosmetic or tooth powder, and which was found in Selma's room. Little importance is attached to it. Dr. Barnes also wrote to the District-Attorney, requesting him, in case the jury finds that the girl died from natural causes, to have the viscera preserved and sealed for future investigation.

If the chemical analysis shows the presence of poison in the stomach, Mr. and Mrs. Dinsmore and Dr. Barnes will be subported before the Coroner's jury to tell what they know.
